Finding Grant Money

Conduct a Google search on the Internet, type in "Grants Search," and find access to many sources of educational grants. A particularly helpful site is www.schoolgrants.org. This website also contains grant-writing tips.

Small Business Gifts

Many local businesses, such as banks or realtors, are interested in sponsoring school programs.

- Approach the decision maker of the business with your request.
- Invite the local press to the event. Businesses are especially appreciative if they see their generosity reflected in the local newspaper.
- In addition to public recognition, send a personal thank-you letter.
- Businesses may be able to write off donations if your organization is a 501(c)3.
- Continue with the relationship by asking the donors to attend other school events.

Educational Foundations

Many school districts have established foundations or endowments where grants monies are available. Call your local school district office to find out if such a foundation exists in your area.

In-School Field Trips

Bring an Earth Adventure program to your school by charging students a modest field trip fee.

School Auctions

- Ask families to donate one or two items that are either small or large. Baked goods work well too.
- Make it a community event by inviting the community to contribute auction items and attend the auction.
- Ask local businesses to donate auction items or consumables for the event.
